INTERACTIVE WORKSHOPS

Develop your employees' understanding of Australia's 60,000 year history with Archae-aus' unique hands-on workshops for government bodies and businesses.

Our staff of professional archaeologists are specialists in Australia's ancient and recent past. Archaeology shows us that the human occupation of Australia spans almost 60,000 years and artefacts recovered during excavations and surface investigations reveal occupations by diverse and complex cultures. We believe that archaeology is a great tool to promote and educate the public about Aboriginal culture and history. Education is one of the best ways to foster and promote reconciliation between Aboriginal and non-Aboriginal people and are a great way to engage in the objectives of your businesses Reconciliation Action Plan.

Our workshops will cover a wide range of topics, from the arrival of the First Australians, their expansion across Australia, the arrival of Europeans and the lives of the early settlers. Using archaeological examples, we will look at the tools Aboriginal people used and how they adapted to their environment and climate change over their 60,000 years in Australia. We will also look at the lives of the early colonists, from the establishment of the Swan River Colony to the stations in the Kimberley and Pilbara.

At the end of this workshop, participants will have gained a further understanding of the archaeology and the incredible story of Aboriginal people and the early European settlers in Western Australia.

- Basic knowledge of some of the significant WA Aboriginal and historical archaeological sites
