

Archaeology Incursions for Years 10, 11 and 12

Tailored incursions to suit students from Year 10 to 12

Develop your students' understanding of archaeology and history with Archae-aus's unique hands-on archaeology incursions tailored for Years 10, 11 and 12 students.

We have a range of incursion types available for upper secondary students, including ATAR talks on the archaeology of ancient sites, including those in ancient Australia, Greece, Rome and Egypt; recording and site survey; artefact analysis and interpretation; and maritime archaeology.

Some of our more hands-on incursions are interactive and encourage students to work in teams and use their interpersonal, problem solving and analytical skills. Alternatively, our presentations are tailored to give students a taste of professional archaeology and/or ancient history experiences.

In addition, we are well-placed to address the cross curriculum priority of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander histories and cultures by drawing comparisons between ancient Australia and Egypt, Greece, Rome and China.

KEY LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Understanding of how archaeological evidence is used as a source for historical research

Development of analytical and interpretative skills

Understanding of how different ancient societies and cultures are identified using archaeological evidence

Understanding of how archaeological evidence is used to construct a narrative of the past
